

Painted Advancement Ceremonies

Bobcat

(blue paw print on the forehead)

Blue is from the sky and represents the spirit of the bobcat. This will remind you to "Do Your Best" as you follow the Cub Scout trail.

(yellow lines under eyes)

yellow is from the sun which will light your path as you follow the Cub Scout trail and it represents the spirit of Cub Scouting.

Wolf

(black paw print on forehead)

1st toe- growth through feats of skill

2nd toe- what you have learned about your home, family, country and religious beliefs

3rd toe- skills you have learned such as using tools, tying knots, using books, and making collections

4th toe- new appreciation for conservation and safety pad- growth as a Cub Scout and the increased responsibility that you are now capable of handling

Bear

(black eyes on forehead)

The eyes of the bear will help you see the trail before you and will help you get through rough spots.

(black line down nose)

The nose of the bear will guide you to new adventures along the Scouting trail.

(black ears on cheeks)

The ears of the bear will help you hear the call of the Eagle so that you will be able to stay on the correct path.

(black curved mouth on chin)

The mouth of the bear knows good from bad and so do you by now.

The climb is getting shorter but steeper as you progress towards the great eagle. Not everyone will make it, but if you follow the senses of the bear, you will succeed.

Webelos

(five red dots on forehead)

1st dot- three activity badges

2nd dot- understanding of the Webelos Badge and uniform

3rd dot- you understand and intend to live by the Boy Scout oath, law, motto, and slogan

4th dot- you know the Boy Scout salute, sign, handclasp, and when to use them

5th dot- agreement to follow the outdoor code

These dots will now be connected with two green V's.

1st V stands for the flag ceremony you have led.

2nd V represents the practice of your religious faith
